

Objectives

- 1) To produce high quality Ph.D. graduates in social development administration with the abilities of knowledge and skill in research, policy analysis and planning, including having creativity to apply these abilities for scholar and practice works in local, provincial, national, and international levels.
- 2) To produce proficient and ethical Ph.D. graduates responding to the needs in human resources in the field of social development administration and related fields, e.g., scholars, researchers, consultants, and administrators of leading governmental, private and civil society organizations in local, provincial, national, and international levels.
- 3) To develop research competency for Ph.D. graduates in order to become academic leaders in the future who can further explore and integrate the body of knowledge in applying the effective improvement and alleviating the problems in the field of social development administration.